answers to the above question.

These figures refer only to the shipping done between Sept. 1st and Dec. 12 inclusive, of the present year.

Apache Ry.	cars
Sheep and Cattle	400
Santa Fe
Sheep	356
Cattle	306
Horses	2
Total	1064

Mr. Dan Divelbess informs us that in loading cattle they will average 40 to a car. We have no means of ascertaining the proportion of sheep and cattle in the Apache shipments, but will estimate that it is nearly evenly divided as is the Santa Fe shipment. Taking half of the 400 cars shipped by the Apache or 200 and adding it to the 306 of the Santa Fe we find a total of 506 cars of cattle billed through our local Santa Fe station with an average of 40 to a car makes the cattle total 20,240. A good average price is around $27.00 per head and at this rate the cattle shipment alone would amount to the comfortable sum of $546,480.00.

Carload of sheep will average somewhere in the neighborhood of 224 to a car, and with 556 cars of sheep these shipments of woolly baas will raise the census roll to the tune of 124,544. At $7.00 per head they total up $871,808.00.

Together, the value of the cattle and sheep billed from this point approximate $1,418,288.00. We would say this was a pretty good sized shipment for one Fall.

In addition to the regular shipment of cattle and sheep, two carloads of horses were shipped out. These would average about 28 to a car which makes a total of 56 and at $50.00 per head would figure out at $1800.00 more. This added to the total of cattle and sheep $1,418,288.00 gives a complete total of $1,420,088.00.

The men, both on the Apache and Santa Fe have been unusually busy handling all this extra work at the stockyards and are rather

SEEN ON RAILROAD AVE

A vision in brown duvetyne and fur whose opulent charms were still further enhanced by a pair of brown "cossack boots". Not a man on the Drug store corner missed'em, girls!

Bill Williams and Teep throwing stones. Not at each other, but out of the roadway. There are still some left.

Togo, standing fifty feet off and barking his defiance at a coyote. The coyote was dead and lay dejectedly on the Apache Speeder, but Togo, the wise bull-pup, seemed to think he was in danger of coming alive and was fully prepared to conduct a rapid strategic retreat.

Fifteen assorted men, we will name no names, pretending to go shopping for Santa Claus merely as an excuse to play with the mechanical toys displayed. Personally we have no excuse—we just do it.

A row of smears on all shop windows about three feet up from the sidewalks where inquisitive little noses have been pressed while their owners gloated on the treasures displayed within.

Henry Lopez and Philip Montano standing in front of the new movie theatre, evidently waiting—and hoping that the screen stars would materialize.

Mr. Jackson at the Drug store demonstrating to Mrs. Hopkins, Miss Mildred Hopkins and ye editor, the life-like manner in which the new French doll said "Mama, ma—ma!"

Mr. Morrow, the engineer, assuring us that they will be out of the trenches by Christmas. Its surely some ditch they have dug.

Mr. Rees explaining how a pretty nurse treats a tonsillitis case. N. B. One of our compositors developed a bad case at once. Half the men in town are threatened with a severe attack.

C. H. Jordan with a pink carnation in his buttonhole alighting from the train last Wednesday. Mr. Creswell getting off the same train says, "Its funny how some men do fall for 'em."

Nearly every husband in Holbrook with a worried look on his face—"what shall I get her for Christmas?"

er glad that the shipping season is about over.

We are greatly indebted both to Mr. Elledge and Mr. Divelbess for their assistance in compiling these figures. We feel that it is a rather conclusive answer, at least to 'how do people live in such a country.'

Manager Booth of the new Movie palace confesses that there is one thing that puzzles him in his new enterprise and that is 'what shall he call the show-house'. But we imagine he will hit upon a lucky solution of the matter at an early date, for we think he has a plan or two up his sleeve in regard to this naming business.

A MILLION AND A HALF DOLLARS WORTH OF CATTLE AND SHEEP

Holbrook Bills Out Phenomenally Large
Stock Shipments This Year

The cattle and sheep business have long been the mainstay of this section and it is interesting to note the large number of cars of both cattle and sheep which have been billed out of this town during the season. To the casual eastern observer Holbrook often seems a rather small town, but if they realized the amount of business done here it would efficiently answer their oft repeated query, "How do people live in such a place." Well, we are among the number of people who live here and this frequently enunciated question gets us rather warm under the collar, so we did a little figuring on the side and here is the result. It may be classed as one of our
